SORT: KEY RECOMMENDATIONS FOR PRACTICE

Clinical recommendation	Evidence rating	References
Patients with inflammatory joint disease should be referred to a rheumatology subspecialist, especially if symptoms last more than six weeks.	C	16, 17
In persons with RA, combination therapy with two or more disease-modifying antirheumatic drugs is more effective than monotherapy. However, more than one biologic agent should not be used at one time (e.g., adalimumab [Humira] with abatacept [Orencial]) because of the high risk of adverse effects.	A	21, 22, 24
A guided exercise program can improve quality of life and muscle strength in patients with RA.	B	32, 34, 35
Cardiovascular disease is the main cause of mortality in persons with RA; therefore, risk factors for coronary artery disease should be addressed in these patients.	C	40, 41

RA = rheumatoid arthritis.

A = consistent, good-quality patient-oriented evidence; B = inconsistent or limited-quality patient-oriented evidence; C = consensus, disease-oriented evidence, usual practice, expert opinion, or case series.
